

Contributors

Seyram Avle is a researcher at the University of Michigan.

Diane E. Bailey is an associate professor in the School of Information at the University of Texas at Austin. Her research investigates work and occupations that employ advanced information, communication, and computer technologies, in fields such as engineering and medicine, as well as remote work contexts.

Tathagata Bandyopadhyay is a professor at the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad.

Eduardo H. Diniz is a professor in the Escola de Administração de Empresas de São Paulo, at Fundação Getulio Vargas, Brazil. His research relates to banking technology, ICT for development, ICT in developing countries, social impacts of ICT and ICT use in government and social organizations.

Brij Kothari is an adjunct professor at the Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad, an Ashoka Fellow, and a Schwab Social Entrepreneur.

Dan Sholler is a doctoral student in the School of Information at the University of Texas at Austin. His research focuses on the relationships between large-scale technology implementations and work practices, primarily in medicine.

Kentaro Toyama will be the W.K. Kellogg Associate Professor of Community Information at the University of Michigan School of Information beginning January 2015. He is also co-editor-in-chief of Information Technologies & International Development.

