Contributors

Roxana Barrantes Cáceres is a senior researcher and the general director of the Institute of Peruvian Studies (IEP, Instituto de Estudios Peruanos). She is also a professor in the Department of Economics at Pontificia Universidad Catolica, Peru.

Pádraig Carmody *is an associate professor of geography at Trinity College Dublin, where he also coordinates the TCD-UCD Masters in Development Practice. His most recent book is T*he New Scramble for Africa (Polity, 2011).

Mireia Fernández-Ardèvol is a full-time PhD researcher and co-director of the research program on Mobile Communication, Economy & Society at the IN3 (Internet Interdisciplinary Institute), Open University of Catalonia in Barcelona (Catalonia, Spain).

Martha Garcia-Murillo is a professor at the School of Information Studies at Syracuse University. She has an MS in economics and a PhD in political economy and public policy from USC. Her research focuses on institutional economics in the ICT sector.

Ricardo Gomez is an assistant professor at the University of Washington's Information School. He specializes in the social impacts of communication technologies, especially in community development settings.

Beth Kolko is a professor of human centered design and engineering at the University of Washington, where she runs the Design for Digital Inclusion lab and works on technology design for low-resource regions. She also runs the Hackademia project, which encourages nontechnical people to gain functional engineering literacies.

Øystein Sæbø is an associate professor in the Department of Information Systems at the University of Agder, Norway. His work focuses on issues related to ICT for development, e-government, and e-participation, including the use of social media in the democratic discourse.

Devinder Thapa is an assistant professor in the Department of Industrial and Management Engineering at the Hanyang University ERICA Campus, South Korea. His research focuses on ICT for development and sociotechnical systems.

Rebecca Walton is an assistant professor of technical and professional communication in the English Department at Utah State University. Her research explores how human and contextual factors affect the design and use of information and communication technologies in resource-constrained environments.

Judith Yaaqoubi is a PhD student in the Department of Human Centered Design and Engineering at the University of Washington. Her research area is human-computer interaction and how cultural orientations influence technology use.

Jorge L. Zapico is a PhD candidate at the Centre for Sustainable Communications at KTH in Stockholm, Sweden. He is a member of both the Media and Interaction Design and the Industrial Ecology departments, and also an MIT Media Lab affiliate.